In addition, the off-label use of drugs to treat anxiety is also of concern because these drugs are being prescribed for ailments outside the scope of their original purpose. You may be tempted to take more oxycontin than you would normally take because of this, but that’s a bad idea because of the fillers and binders in the medication.